Formal:

- The formal is on this Monday coming. We will have buckets on every table, with the table that raises the least having to do a forfeit of dancing on the stage to a cheesy song in front of everyone. We discuss song options.
- We also need to sort out the date auction – so far we have Will to do it, and we need three more people willing to volunteer to go on a date. Before the end of the week, please try to find people to volunteer to be auctioned off for dates.
- Lexie has managed to get 11 roses for £1 from Poundland.
- We decide it might be best to have music instead of a DJ.
- Siri will be dressing up as cupid.
- The swapping raised nearly £70.
- Information for the menu: how much money we've raised for Grace House through not having a DJ; informing people about the money pots on the table and the cupid messaging session.
- Lexie asks people to help with the formal set-up from 3-5.

Grace House Auction:

- The exciting news is that we have the author of the Horrible Histories series, Terry Deary, to present the auction.
- We will need to start finding prizes. Our guest auctioneer means that we might be able to get the SCR involved and the wider university.
- Helena suggests that now that we have well-established alumni whose companies could perhaps donate items to the auction.
- Adam Dempsey could possibly get Whittard's prizes.

- Jo will ask Café Rouge for prizes, and Karolina will ask for prizes from Wetherspoon's.
- If companies donate, we can put their logo in a brochure for the Auction.

Football fundraising:

- Danny Agar has asked for Charity Comm to do fundraising at the weekend's football match.
- We try to think of ideas which would not put us at risk of losing money.

Fashion Show:

- Caroline suggests having the new exec do an auction of promises for the Fashion Show.
- We could also auction off clothes from the Fashion Show.

DUCK Week:

- Caroline and Jasper draw attention to the big, yellow duck on the Science Site, and will be working at the stand on the Science Site.
- If you pay your library fines this week, the average paid in over all the days will be donated to charity.

Action Points:

- Start going into shops and asking for donations.
- Find people to volunteer for the dates for the Valentine's Formal.
